Ask HN: Client ask me to develop a webapp for a business that can be used only by employees - johnnyapra The business could be classified as a telegram kind of business. Employees are supposed to be the only ones that know about the business and only the employees are supposed to be able to sign a contract with the business. The problem is that the business is still very far in the development stage. The business has asked me to develop a web application that can be used by the employees to fill out a form, send messages, etc. The business can have as many employees as they want, and the employees don't need to be based in the same city or even the same country. The only requirements are that the employees must have a smartphone and be able to use a web browser. The ideas I have for this project are: - Wordpress (newbie) - HTML5 - CSS3 - PHP - Javascript - Jquery - MySQL ===== pcr0 I've done similar things in the past. It's not an easy problem to solve, but I would suggest considering migrating the data to more modern technologies. Not using the smartphone is a problem as well, as client-side apps are much more difficult to secure. --- johnnyapra Thanks for your answer. I'm aware that the solutions above are not easy and will take a lot of time to implement, but I don't think it is a good idea to use a technology that is not going to be used in 5 years.

About the Knnge the first two books are by Imam Ibn Kcseer, who is he?. Frequency of bone marrow involvement in patients with neuroblastoma, disseminated neuroblastoma, and nodular-sclerosing mediastinal tumor. A retrospective study of the medical records of 23 neuroblastoma patients with metastatic or relapsing disease showed that 13 patients had bone marrow involvement in a predominantly nodular-sclerosing pattern. The extent of bone marrow involvement in this predominantly nodular-sclerosing pattern in eight of these 13 patients did not differ from that of patients with disseminated neuroblastoma. No patient with exclusively nodular-sclerosing bone marrow involvement had bone marrow metastases at the time of initial tumor diagnosis. Although all patients in this study were treated with vincristine, systemic therapy was discontinued in four patients after osteomyelitis developed in the bone marrow. In four of the 13 patients with this predominantly nodular-sclerosing pattern bone marrow involvement, there was no response to treatment and there was a fatal outcome. We conclude that the majority of patients with neuroblastoma metastatic to bone marrow had bone marrow involvement of predominantly nodular-sclerosing type, had no active tumor in the bone marrow, and were unresponsive to therapy. The rapidly progressive course of some patients with neuroblastoma bone marrow involvement and marrow metastases, supports the notion that this condition is potentially fatal.This invention relates generally to the art of mechanical seal assemblies, and more particularly to mechanical seal assemblies which control the hydraulic fluid pressure applied to a face seal to regulate the fluid pressure that provides a seal with respect to a rotating shaft seal assembly.
